Mike,

Thanks for the email. I am aware of some of those provisions and the wide latitude they seem to grant to the trusts to conduct a different review and for them to set different values for recovery. It also seems to me that if there is any sense in the trusts of a torrent of claims from abroad, this could also negatively impact the chances of recovery. I'll be very interested to hear your take on how we might approach this.

I'll call you and Rusty on Monday.

Thanks for your email and at least you are still thinking about justice for yourself.

Unless, I am able to talk to an ex Ankura employee who has knowledge about TARGETED HIGH VOLUME B READERS AND DOCTORS THAT UNDERGO A SHAM AUDIT BY ANKURA TO RAILROAD THEM OUT OF WORKING WITH THE ASBESTOS TRUSTS, then I am dead in the water.

My income as a result of Ankura's sham , secret audit of me has resulted in my income decreasing 90% and I will be out of this business in 4 months.

Hi Andrew and Rusty,

I hope you both are doing well. I am trying to hold up as best as I can on my side. I just wanted to quickly say that I still stand by everything I said, but I just wanted to say a few more things. I just realized something else.

For larger companies, the company needs to do a 3 way match to verify different things on invoices to be paid. I just learned about the 3 way match a couple days ago but when I worked for the government, it was called a 220 and another number, a receiving report and I think the other was an inspection report. I did part of the process while working for the government but did not understand why until recently. I didn't connect the dots until recently but here is more on the 3 way match

Document	What it shows
1. Company purchase order	What the company had ordered and at what cost.
2. Company receiving report	What the company has received.
3. Vendor invoice	What the vendor billed the company.

The 3 way match is essential for a large company like Ankura but it was not done properly. To my best knowledge, you need to match all 3 parts to pay an invoice or check for issues. The 2 Sr. accountants, the 2 controllers, and the partner should have known this, but I am sure it was never implemented. At Ankura, a Jr Accountant like myself or 2 others would initiate the accounts payable process (invoice paying process using trust money) by digitally stamping an invoice as received. I am not 100% sure if the digital stamp said received but as of now that is the only thing that makes sense. There is a small chance the digital stamp said something else but I am 100% sure that it was digitally stamped though. There is a good chance that we were unknowingly forging receiving reports because how can you stamp something as received when you don't know what was ordered (never a comparison to purchase orders) and you don't know exactly what you received either. Before us 3 Jr accountants, a young woman named miyako yeriick did it who did not have a business background did the digital stamping, and before that was Jeanie Walker (Sr accountant when I started at Ankura).

So going back to me getting fired, I ask at my last meeting at Ankura if invoice line items are being checked for legitimacy. The accounting controller says no and nobody corrects him. Nobody is checking line items legitimacy and receiving stamps are digitally being put on invoices with no purchase order for comparison. Invoices are blindly marked as received, Jr accountants are not allowed to talk to auditors that ankura pays, auditors have very limited access to invoices / other info, controllers and senior members are the only ones to talk to auditors, I ask a question at a meeting about line items, and I am essentially fired at my next day back at work.

Something is very wrong and I am guessing forging receiving reports is just part of the story.

It is very possible that my previous accounting team hired me because of my previous experience with invoices. They did not hire me as a consultant though. I was hired as a jr accountant and I assumed that they knew exactly what they were doing. I just followed their lead because I was new there. I mention this because my previous coworkers may have screwed up out of ignorance. Either way I am hoping it could lead to the truth for all of us.

I wanted to send you guys this right away and sorry if something does not make sense. I can clarify if needed.

Rusty, any good updates with you about this Ankura stuff?

Take care,
Andrew

All,

A polygraph, although helpful for peace of mind is not admissible in court and would not help as evidence in furtherance of a claim. Although a review of Andrew Y's hard drive may not provide concrete evidence of Ankura tampering or breach of fiduciary duties, it would be a good component of any story to submit to a court to pass muster for review.

I therefore do recommend an e-forensic team does a review of the hard drive to make certain whether or not it was accessed by a party other than Andrew Y or his family and provide a history of what was accessed.

Andrew Y. did you ever transfer work email or attachments to your personal computer or do you have any work materials in your possession or control? Even if not specifically pertinent, those materials would be helpful to at least review and understand more of Ankura's internal operations.

The other key component to a claim would be a submitted affidavit by Andrew Y. as to what he saw, read and experienced working at Ankura that is related to this matter. That may include what Andrew Y already detailed in his emails in a more cogent and concise form to be attached as an exhibit to any claim that is brought.

In short, there is currently not much in the way of evidence, but we can at least try to gather something that may support suspicion of wrong doing by Ankura and the trust attorneys/advisors.

Regards,

Andrew

Hi Rusty,

Andrew B, do you agree that this is the best way to go? I highly doubt that there will be concrete against Ankura with the Hard drive investigation, but there is a very small chance. I feel like a polygraph of how I had nothing to do with the suspicious activity on my computer would be better. Assuming ankura did tamper with my computer, they most likely would've physically accessed my computer bc they already had all my passwords and it would not be too hard to gain access into my apartment. Even if I can prove I was not home when my computer was hacked, Ankura can claim I set them up by getting someone else to do some suspicious activity while I was away.

Thank you for your time

Subject: Final remarks about ankura

Hello,

Just some final comments about ankura.

So millions of dollars of trust money is improperly approved and paid to vendors including ankura invoices. The proper way to ensure there is no fraud is to have a inspection and received report to validate line items on invoices but this was not being done based off the meeting where Elliot said line items were not checked in detail. This means no one is checking the ankura invoice thoroughly. It's just paid and the trustees question some charge once in a while but as far as I can remember, they do not check it well based off of the trustee time sheets. They may spend a few hours looking at the ankura invoice a month but someone should be auditing it further because the ankura invoices are fairly big. The ankura invoices that the trusts pay out are substantial. I cannot remember the amount ankura charges the trusts but I would guess ankura charges around 2-10 million per year. Then there is claims that are paid out that are not properly checked for legitimacy from my understanding and then who knows what is going on with how the trust money is invested in. The billions of dollars in trust money are invested but I have no idea how legit the investments were.

Also there's so much guess work leading to overpayments. From my understanding, high level accounting involves a lot of guess work but I am not sure if million dollar overpayments to the irs is normal. I have seen irs refund checks for millions of dollars and I am not sure what exactly happens to them. I just helped process them.

I have also decided to not have my hard drive investigated at this time because the few hundred dollar investment does not seem worth it for the results. The results would raise suspicion at best but it's not going to prove definitively that ankura is guilty of something. I'd honestly rather take a polygraph but do not want to invest in that at This time but may in the future.

Good luck guys and take care.

Good morning, Ms. Nickel. It has come to my attention that there are several of our claims that are being marked as reviewed deficient due to a rejected report from a physician who is no longer accepted by the trust. We understand that there have been issues with CXR's from Dr. Durham and we have done what is necessary to correct these issues. However, the majority of the claims that are now being marked as deficient have the physical exam done inside of September of 2018. The following is an email you sent to me on December 11 of 2018:

"Mr. Alfaro –

The Trusts are no longer accepting any CXR's from Dr. Durham. All claims that were previously reviewed with CXR's from him, will be re-reviewed and a deficiency added per the Trust.

Additionally, the Trust will not accept any physical examination documents from Dr. Durham after September, 2018.

Please let me know if you have any other questions.

Thx."

According to your email, physical examination document from Dr. Durham should be good until after September of 2018. Our claims being marked as deficient fall before that deadline that you laid out for us. Why is it that we are having problems now with our claims even after you gave us a cutoff date of September 2018? Is this a lack of communication on the trusts part? Please get back to me as soon as possible with a solution.

Rusty,

I urge you not to throw in the towel and let DCPF 'escape' criminal liability. You have a story to tell of tyranny, fraud, bad faith, and racketeering. The DCPF Trusts 'banned' you (one of the most credible Asbestos Doctors in the Country) - just as they did my office - to misappropriate Trust Funds to favored counsel (Steven Kazan) and to funnel Trust funds to their 'friends' (conducting the sham audit).

The DCPF audit of you, like the sham audits of my office, were targeted, without due process, and in bad faith. No doubt the Trusts had their conclusion cemented - that you are not a credible Doctor - before the audit ever began.

I've included in the his e-mail 2 D.O.J. Attorneys who have never responded to me either - despite reaching out a dozen times. But I do trust they are listening.

Thanks,

Mike

Yea, I have gotten many calls. I met with the law firm looking at helping me, that you talked with recently. They all agree I have a good case, just a venue problem. They want the case in Mississippi and do not want the case in the Bankruptcy Courts in Delaware. I proposed just suing Ankura and not the Trustees or any Trusts. I would sue Ankura in Mississippi for both Fraud and Tortuous interference of my Business. They are concerned that Ankura is a core entity hired by the Trusts and therefore are covered by all the Bankruptcy Umbrella. Any Thoughts on this?

I do not want to be GROUPEd with any other B Readers as I did it right each and every time I read an x ray. That being said, for blog purposes: I am William H. Durham, a 2 timed certified B Reader by NIOSH/CDC who is duly licensed for 30 years by the state medical board in Mississippi and 10 years by the state of Georgia. Dr. Durham has a current DEA license. He is acceptable to the medical licensure board of 2 states, and the DEA and NIOSH/CDC, but not acceptable to the corrupt asbestos trustees and their agent for sham audits Ankura. Dr. Durham was also banned from doing any medical causation exams for injured asbestos workers or writing any asbestos cancer related link letters to the Trusts for dying workers, even though Dr. Durham was NEVER audited or evaluated for any of his exams or letters for their quality. Dr. Durham will be the first B Reader in the history of the program to take the new digital certification exam for the CDC in March of 2020.

2. Dr. Donald Breyer- a board certified radiologist in California, who is probably the longest tenured B Reader active in the country. Dr. Breyer has been a NIOSH/CDC certified B Reader for 30 years, but is now banned for working to help identify injured asbestos workers.
3. Dr. Mark Klepper- a board certified pulmonologist in Dallas, Tx. Dr. Klepper has been a B Reader for many years, passing the recertification test and presently staffs an ICU in a large Texas hospital.
4. Dr. Henry K. Smith- a radiologist in Pennsylvania.

What do each of these banned doctors and multiple certified B Readers with NIOSH/CDC have in common? They worked on the plaintiff side in an effort to identify injured workers for compensation, which is the sole reason the Trusts were set up to do.

While these 4 doctors have had their professional careers ruined and devastated, thus preventing injured workers from receiving their just compensation from the federal bankruptcy Trusts. Simultaneously, these monies were diverted to the female lawyers, erskin, rowe, et al. and their puppet agent Ankura, specifically John Brophy.

These entities have made millions while preventing injured asbestos workers from their justified compensation and they continue to laugh all the way to the bank each month.

This is one of the top travesties of INJUSTICE in this country. I pray for transparency and an evaluation of the facts. JUST FOLLOW THE MONEY DOJ FOR GOD'S SAKE.

DCPF put all of Dr. Krone's B Reads on HOLD today pending investigation.

This will be the 5th B Reader banned from reading because they helped the workers on the plaintiff side.

My lawsuit will be filed in 3-4 weeks. I got a rough draft or first draft from law firm today.

No B Readers left to help the workers.
